The morning after that won't let go
The lengthy aftermath takes us back and forth is brought back to the shore of our front door

now changed and ruined give themselves a chance

The indecision went for too long But who are we to judge? Did anybody know exactly how to act and how to best protect the little peace that we have

But how to make the memories last With no memento I can grasp Are you sure that's how it went
The story seems a little bent

(Repeat Chorus)
